

Our Mission:

CWOC's mission is to provide a rustic retreat, a place where students of all ages can come to learn about natural resource stewardship while embedded in a beautiful working farm and ranch location. CWOC is where educators and resource professionals can supplement their classroom curriculum with hands-on outdoor activities, and where business teams and other private parties can come to recreate and build teamwork.

Our Vision:

CWOC's vision continues to evolve. Established as an outdoors educational facility, CWOC continues to build, focused on becoming a preferred retreat destination within the Lewis-Clark Valley and surrounding region; a place where people can gather, recreate, and learn in nature. Users will leave our facility with a greater understanding of sustainable approaches to natural resource management, and a holistic appreciation of them through outdoor experiences in a rustic setting - whether that experience is in the shape of an outdoor classroom, interactive workshop, a team-building challenge, recreational activities, or bespoke private events.

Our Facilities

CWOC: an aerial/bird's-eye view of the Lodge.

CWOC is sustainably off grid. Built on private land, the camp facilities offer users a unique and safe remote experience within a beautiful, natural setting.

The facilities onsite include a lodge, a pavilion, two bunkhouses, a cook's cabin, outhouses, and two shower houses. We also have a firepit gazebo onsite, and an outdoor kitchen/dining area with propane grill and refrigerator/freezer (a separate cook's cabin is also available). CWOC's standard facilities include a centralized water system and on-demand hot water heater.

All electricity in the camp comes from solar power (the lodge, kitchen/dining areas, and the gazebo all have solar power connections).

Catering vendors and rental equipment are available in Lewiston for special event needs.

CWOC offers opportunities for many uses, from hands-on education and training courses to private camping experiences and special events (such as weddings). CWOC also has a dedicated area with a challenge course.

Challenge Course

Group engage in team-building activities at the Challenge Course.

CWOC's challenge course is available for organizational team-building activities. Use of this challenge course requires an extra fee and a designated CWOC facilitator onsite during its use.

The Lodge

The CWOC Lodge and Educational Resource Center has a large area to host meetings and indoor activities. This facility is supplied with curricula and equipment for teaching onsite.

About Us:

CWOC's success, past and present, is shaped by community collaboration and volunteer support.

CWOC was established as a rustic camp preserve in the mid 1980's as a private location to experience natural resource education and boondocking in nature. CWOC will continue to expand our facilities and infrastructure to support multi-day events for a wider variety of groups and users of all ages.

CWOC has been made possible by ongoing support from donors and an army of volunteers. At the 40-year mark, we strive to stay true to our foundational values while supporting and meeting the needs of all our 21st century users.

Whether you seek to visit or volunteer, we appreciate your support and look forward to working with you to add to CWOC's stewardship success story for many decades to come.

We're Celebrating 40 Years!

2026 marks a milestone in our history, and we remain excited as we launch into a fifth decade of providing a wide variety of new and returning users with memorable experiences in a rustic, off-grid setting.

If organizing a special event is in your future, please call CWOC to explore your options for hosting it here.

CWOC is open/available for daily and overnight rentals from May thru October. Availability at other times of the year will be considered upon request. Please email inquiries and special requests to us as soon as possible, as all reservations are confirmed and calendared on a first-come, first-served basis.
